

Sisters and Brothers

Abhishek Nyayapathi, (13 years)

It wouldn't hurt to give a smile
To the next person you see in a while
Because that act of kindness
Could stretch for a mile.

When you see someone new
Don't isolate them from you
Imagine being in that position
It would make someone feel blue.

Being racist is wrong
We must learn to get along
When you see someone different
Don't look at them like they are king-kong

If you get the chance
Try not to give a glance
That would anger people
And make them want to give it right back
This is how most beefs start
Just for wearing the wrong colors
You get your face torn apart
I never understood why people did this
Especially to the people who tried to end this

Gandhi tried to fight for the same reason
But it angered some fool and now he's ain't breathing
The same thing happened to Dr. Martin Luther King
He got shot for trying to do the right thing

There are many people of different color
But the truth is we are Sisters and Brothers
