Once there was a professor called Mr. Heely Pants. He was very bored. So he started messing around his lab trying to invent something.

After spending a few days he was really bored. One day he was reading the newspaper. He read that ANT which is a special investigation team was trying to find bad guys. They announced a prize for anybody who helped find bad guys. He got an idea. He decided to invent a shirt, which made him invisible. He worked day and night and finally succeeded.

Mr. Pants wore his newly invented shirt and set on his mission. He travelled to many places. He was able to travel by air or bus without buying a ticket, since he was invisible. After a few days he found the bad guys and reported to ANT. He then took off his shirt and saved it for his next task. The ANT rewarded him ONE dollar.
